

Job Posting Announcement

Effective Date: June 8, 2010

Job Title: Melts Application Engineer

Company: Solvay Solexis, Inc.

Location: Thorofare, NJ

Company Overview: The Solvay Group ranks among the world's largest chemical manufacturers. Throughout its more than 145 years of existence the Solvay Group has been recognized as a highly reliable, quality-minded company, loyal to its customers and a leader in Responsible Care. Headquartered in Brussels, Belgium, Solvay is a global company that employs more than 19,000 people in 50 countries.

Solvay Solexis, a member of the Solvay Group, is built on a solid tradition of innovation and the practical application of fluorine research for the benefit of our customers and their industries. Together with our sister company, Solvay Fluor, we rank second worldwide in fluorochemicals. With more than 23 product lines, Solexis answers the most demanding needs of high technology markets such as: semiconductors & electronics, surface treatment, pharmaceuticals, building & architecture, wire & cable, automotive, aerospace, personal care, batteries, membranes, and other demanding industries. Headquartered in Bollate, Italy, Solexis has plants in six countries and commercial offices around the world.

Position Overview: Solvay Solexis is seeking a Melts Application Engineer to work in our Commercial Operations team at our North American headquarters in Thorofare, NJ.

The Melts Application Engineer will be responsible for applications development activities within the wire and cable market. Reporting to the Business Director for North America, the person in this position will provide technical service support to customers and potential customers, including troubleshooting of products and processes. An integral part of the commercial team, this person will serve as a highly technical resource to sales and marketing colleagues in the support of customers and in the development of new business opportunities.

Responsibilities:

- Provide technical service support and problem resolution to melts customers
- Investigate customer complaints – provide customer claim resolution support
- Develop new customers in conjunction with sales functions
- Develop applications for customers and market opportunities
- Develop and maintain relationships with customers

- Present technologies and products at technical conferences
- Network with industry technology managers
- Train customers on the use and benefits of the products
- Manage material development projects
- Maintain technical marketing documentation
- Interact regularly with technical service, sales managers and customer service representatives
- Ensure that health, safety, security and protection of the environment are given the highest priority in all activities performed at all locations
- Perform other duties as required or assigned

Requirements:

- Bachelor's Degree in Chemical Engineering or related engineering field; Master's Degree preferred
- Minimum of 5 years experience working in an industrial manufacturing environment
- Extensive experience with polymer extrusion; Fluoropolymer experience preferred
- Excellent communication skills, oral and written
- Strong computer skills, including Microsoft Office and SAP
- Position requires up to 20% travel

To Apply: Email your resume to careers@solvay.com with subject line "Melts Application Engineer"